

PIONEER POST

Volume 2

March 25, 2019

Issue 6

Hello, readers! Today I want to talk about an important job: an attorney (a.k.a lawyer). So I have a question: Why should you become an attorney? Well first off, not to crush anyone's dream about some jobs, but in my opinion, I think that many of the jobs in the future will be replaced by robots. This is probably not true, but robots can effortlessly do tasks without getting tired and without question. This means that some jobs that can be done by a human could hypothetically be replaced by robots, thus making that line of work obsolete. However, attorneys can't be replaced by robots because this line of profession requires more than just the ability of a detective; it requires a skill that only a human can have. And that skill is emotional intelligence. Emotional intelligence (abbreviated EI) basically means that you can tell how someone is feeling, and monitor how you feel. Since most robots don't have emotions, robots can't become a lawyer because it's required that you have EI. Second, you'll have the opportunity to help defend people accused of a crime. If you like that, this job is for you. You'd also learn and use a ton of useful skills like deductive reasoning, time management, and communication. Also, this profession can have its own benefits. Sometimes you're able to travel around the world to defend a client, and this is great if you wanted to see around the globe. And if you decide you want to become a defense attorney, don't forget this saying from an old attorney: "A lawyer is someone who smiles no matter how bad it gets." I hope this encouraged you, and I'll see you in the courtroom!

This is Gabriel Perez, signing off.

Women's History Month

Women's History Month takes place in the month of March where we take time to recognize and honor women who have made a great impact on America in the past and who will continue to change our country for the better. But did you know that Women's History Month started off only as Women's History Week? Women's History Week started in 1978 as local celebration in Santa Rosa, California. In 1987, Congress passed a public law which designated March as Women's History Month. Former president Jimmy Carter said, “From the first settlers who came to our shores, from the first American Indian families who befriended them, men and women have worked together to build this nation. Too often the women were unsung and sometimes their contributions went unnoticed. But the achievements, leadership, courage, strength and love of the women who built America was as vital as that of the men whose names we know so well.” We have been celebrating Women's History Month for many years, and we hope to keep celebrating for many more years to come.

Where Are the Pioneers Now?

Marabella Thor is another one of Union House's many former students. When Marabella first moved to Union House in the 4th grade, she was shy and very nervous about making friends. But later on in 5th grade, she met her best friend, which was her favorite memory at Union House. Marabella really liked her time as a Pioneer. She made many new friends that she's still friends with today. While she was attending Union House, her hobby was making key chains, and she really liked playing the game Popcorn on the playground. Marabella's favorite subject was English, and she had really good grades. She had fantastic teachers who taught her well, and she earned nearly straight A's. Currently Marabella is in college studying to obtain her associates degree in science for sonography, and she hopes that her future job will be an ultrasound technician. Union House is proud to see how far Marabella has come.

Marvel

Superheroes are the strong, fast, or even comical main protagonists in graphic novels, books, and movies. These characters such as Captain Marvel or Batman inspire us to do something for the greater good of our community. A popular superhero organization is known as Marvel. Marvel has given us a handful of memorable heroes such as Iron Man, Captain America, The Hulk, Black Panther, and of course Groot. Marvel was run by a man named Stan Lee. Stan Lee was the CEO of Marvel since the beginning, giving us memorable characters such as Peter Parker (AKA the Spider-Man). Stan Lee has inspired Marvel to create more stories and reach out to the community. With the upcoming Avengers: Endgame we can celebrate Marvel's 58 years of epic heroics.
